

The Great Vermont Dragon Egg Hunt!

Along with books of adventure and magic, libraries all across Vermont have each been sent... a Dragon's Egg! But, a library cannot keep a Dragon's Egg safe for long. These eggs need to be protected and cared for in a home. So each library has taken their egg and hidden it for one clever child or family to track down by following a trail of clues. In this way, we will find a new nest for the Dragon Egg of Norman Williams Library! The clues will test the determination of anyone who seeks to take the egg home and be its guardian. Accept the challenge and you'll be given a clue from the children's librarian; follow it to the next, then the next, and so on until you solve the puzzle and return to the librarian with your solution. But a measure of luck is required as well! Many in this town are clever and some will solve the puzzles, but only one name will be chosen blindly from all of those who successfully follow the trail of clues. Will that name be yours?...

To help you care for your new Dragon Egg, should you be chosen, a Folkmanis Baby Dragon Puppet will be going home with you as well, in which you can store the egg and keep it safe and warm at home!

All children or groups who solve the clues will receive a special PRIZE!...

~Clues to start you on your quest will be handed out in the children's room downstairs at the Norman Williams Public Library beginning at 10:30 am on Saturday, September 18th.

~Clues should be solved and solutions handed in at the library by 3 o'clock.

~The egg and dragon puppet will be awarded at 3:30

~Free for all! All are welcome!

~Those in the same household are encouraged to work together.

~Rain or shine, so if it's raining, don't forget an umbrella!
(NOT ALL CLUES MAY BE ON LIBRARY GROUNDS)

GOOD LUCK!
